

RF Data Acquisition for a Stationary Bike

Refine existing data acquisition system on stationary test bike to collect load data from crank arm wirelessly. Using existing hardware and software implement data recording system, and calibration and verification process for the system. Project will include learning to use labview and wireless communications and implementation of data recording system. One or two semesters.